Low impact development sounds a lot like planner-speak.

But the truth is it's more than jargon. It's a trend in cities and towns across the country.

It's also the subject of a seminar on Thursday, March 22 at the Innovate Building Conference Room in downtown Greenville. The session begins at 7:45 a.m. and runs until 9 a.m.

Jennifer Bitting, an environmental engineer with the Low Impact Development Center, will speak on the myths associated with such development.

The event is sponsored by Upstate Forever and the Homebuilders Association of Greenville. There is no charge, but reservations are requested. Contact Lisa Hallo at Upstate Forever at 250-0500 ext. 33 to register, or e-mail lhalla@upstateforever.org.
