Lunch & Learn to highlight growth

Upstate Forever Executive Director Brad Wyche will discuss the Upstate's increasing population, its development projections for the next 30 years and options for managing growth at the Upcountry History Museum's Lunch & Learn event, "Upstate S.C.: Confronting the Challenges of a Fast-Growing Region," from noon to 1 p.m. today.

Seats are free for museum members and $5 for guests. Chick-fil-A lunches will be available for purchase for $5. Reservations are suggested and can be made by calling the museum at 864-467-3100 or emailing info@upcountryhistory.org.

Chick-fil-A at Cherrydale Point is the sponsor of the museum's Lunch & Learn Series.

Upstate Women's Show seeks inventions

The Upstate Women's Show, a three-day annual event, is looking for interesting products for women that are made in the Upstate. This year's show will be Aug. 26-28 at Carolina First Center in Greenville.

Inventors who reside in the Upstate may submit a fun and creative video about their products to Lindsey@JBMshows.com for judging. The winner will receive free exhibit space at the 2010 and 2011 Women's Shows, exposure to market the product on stage at the show, product exposure at UpstateWomensShow.com and a tiara to wear throughout the show.

Entries must be submitted before Aug. 1, and the winner will be contacted by Aug. 15. Candidates must be able to exhibit at this year's show.

Nearly 8,000 women attended the show in 2009, and 300 vendors exhibited their products and/or services.
