

This is a printer friendly version of an article from GoUpstate.com

To print this article open the file menu and choose Print.

Back

Article published Sep 12, 2007

Video from panel discussion on urban development

Published: Wednesday, September 12, 2007 | Updated: 3:21 pm

ARTICLE OPTIONS

Discuss

Email

Print

digg this

Facebook

Newsvine

The Green Screen Film Series take place every Thursday through Oct. 25 at The Showroom and focuses on issues ranging from urban development to suburban sprawl to environmentalism. It is sponsored by Upstate Forever, Partners for Active Living, Hub-Bub and the Hub City Farmers Market.

On Sept. 6, a crowd gathered at the downtown Spartanburg location to watch the documentary "Subdivided," about isolation and community in modern suburbia. A panel discussion followed, and this video segment includes excerpts from that discussion as well as reaction to the film from Spartanburg City Manager Mark Scott.

The next in the series will be Sept. 13. It is "The Future of Food," a look at the critical issues facing global agriculture.

All films are free and will start at 7 p.m.

More News

- Freshman duo yields immediate returns for Wofford special teams
- Spartanburg man dies in early morning fire
- Spartanburg economic panel: Still a few bumps ahead
- Clemson's Kelly has made most of opportunities

- Restaurant owner faces deportation

Top AP Headlines

- Retailers Report Sluggish October Sales
- Troops in Capital of Ex-Soviet Georgia
- Report: Muslim Women Face Worse Struggles
- Afghans Bury MPs Killed in the Attack
- Chesney, Underwood Win Top CMA Awards

Odd and Offbeat

- NYC Eatery Offers \$25,000 Dessert
- Shop Owner Finds Urn in Back of Buick
- Tallest US Man Is 7-Foot-8 Va. Deputy
- Woman Charged With Biting Off Man's Lip
- Bear With Sweet Tooth 'Brakes' Into Van

Related Video

•